WRITING WORKSHOP OVERSUBSCRIBED CLASS #11 RUNS IN TWO SECTIONS

Supervisors' registration of personnel for the January Writing Workshop, course I-6 in your office copy of the OTR Catalog, was more than double the enrollment limit. It proved feasible, in this instance, to schedule 2 sections of the class taught by [REDACTED] Chief Instructor, and his associate, Charles [REDACTED]

25X1A

Personnel interested in attending future Writing Workshops are advised to register as far in advance as possible. Usually limitations of space and in the number of available instructors make it impossible to schedule more than one section. The next course is scheduled to begin 25 February.

TEST YOUR SKILL IN READING?

If you wish to have your scanning, informational reading, and study reading skills evaluated, you may contact the Reading Improvement Branch, extension [REDACTED] and arrange to take reading skill tests.

25X1A

The tests usually given for diagnosis and analysis of reading skills at the beginning of Reading Improvement, course I-7 in your office copy of the OTR Catalog, will be given. On the basis of scores on the tests, the reading instructors will make recommendations as to whether or not you should take the Reading Improvement course. They will also suggest other steps you may take to improve your reading skills.

EXPERIMENTAL SCHEDULING OF APRIL, MAY
READING IMPROVEMENT CLASSES WILL SAVE STUDENTS' TRAVEL TIME

Without decreasing the total number of hours spent in the classroom, the duration of the Reading Improvement class scheduled to begin 15 April 1957 will be shortened from 7 weeks to 3 1/2 weeks; it will end on 8 May 1957.

As a trial, the course will be conducted in 18 two-hour sessions rather than the 35 one-hour sessions usually offered. This training intensification will save each student who comes by shuttle to Alcott Hall about 17 hours of the time now required to attend the course.

Another Reading Improvement Class will begin 15 May 1957 and end 7 June. It will also consist of 18 two-hour sessions.

The 15 April and 15 May classes will be retested two months after the end of each course, and their long-term skill improvement will be compared with the improvement shown by classes that completed the training on a 7-week, one hour a day, schedule.

Until the retest results for the two experimental classes are analyzed, there will be no change affecting the presently scheduled 17 June - 2 July 1957, seven-week, class.

TAILORED COURSE FOR OO/CONTACTS
SCHEDULED FOR 7TH PRESENTATION

The seventh class of the OO/C REFRESHER, course I-11 in your office copy of the OTR Catalog, began 4 February. This course, for contact specialists, exemplifies a type of training tailored specifically to the needs of a requesting component.

The OO/C Refresher was organized by OTR in 1955, at the request of OO/Contact Division to serve as their internal training program. The objective of the course, attended by field personnel brought to Headquarters every two years for 10 days, is to familiarize them with the current organization and mission of the Intelligence Community and the relationship of the OO/Contact Division to them. Field personnel are given an opportunity to meet with users of their reports and to discuss mutual problems in production and collection requirements. A review of the world situation is given by OCI area specialists, and tours of Headquarters installations are arranged.

All OO/C field personnel have attended the course within the last two years, and the curriculum now is being revised by OO/C and Intelligence School representatives on the basis of OO/C needs, critiques from previous classes, and Field office requirements.

The revised curriculum will include a review of basic methodology, group discussions of field collection problems led by specialists from Field offices, and visits to Headquarters branches with which contact specialists deal.

SPECIAL CABLE REFRESHER TRAINING
GIVEN OVER 70 DD/S, DD/P PERSONNEL

25X1A Special cable refresher training was given, during the fall of 1956 and in January, 1957, to secretaries and stenographers of the Office of Logistics and the PP Staff. Over 70 individuals attended the tailored classes, taught by [REDACTED] Administrative Training/TR.

These special presentations are oriented to problems unique to the component requesting the instruction. For instance, components of DD/I and DD/S prepare dispatches going to area divisions of DD/P. Format, and other detail, must be in accord with regulations not available to non-DD/P components; also, each area division has developed variations peculiarly characteristic of its field communication. Thus, the special cable refresher training requested by the Office of Logistics was geared to the problems resulting from this general situation.

As in the DD/P-requested class, attended only by personnel of that component, the Logistics class concentrated on "live" materials of interest to the secretary and stenographer. The purpose of these special classes is to maintain a high efficiency in respect to Agency communication - cable traffic - and constantly to improve this level of service through periodic refresher instruction.

SPECIAL IBM EXECUTIVE TYPEWRITER
CLINIC DRAWS AGENCY INTEREST

Because of the substantial demand evidenced throughout the Agency, the IBM Executive Typewriter Clinic, originally a one-day program scheduled for 17 December, was extended to include 18 December with six sessions during those two days.

Forty-nine individuals attended this first scheduled clinic, announced in the December issue of your OTR Bulletin. The instruction was conducted by Margaret Duane, Educational Representative, Electric Typewriter Division, International Business Machine Company. Similar training sessions on other electric typewriters including the IBM regular electric typewriter, may be held in the near future. Watch the NEWS section of your OTR Bulletin.

APPROXIMATELY [REDACTED] STUDENTS TRAINED IN 1956 CLERICAL ORIENTATION CLASSES

25X9
25X9

During 1956, approximately [REDACTED] new clerical employees attended Clerical Orientation, course B-10 in your office copy of the OTR Catalog. This three-day course, given 50 weeks during last year, averaged 24 students per class. Largest number trained in any one week: 50.

In this course, trainees who are to be employed in typing or stenographic positions receive three days' training; personnel entering clerk positions are given two days' training. It is interesting to note that in 1956 more than three times as many individuals took the three-day course, as the two-day.

NEW CURRENT EVENTS TEST DEVELOPED
ASSESSMENT AND EVALUATION STAFF/TR

The need for a means of appraising a professional applicant's knowledge of current affairs long has been recognized in relation to many positions in the Agency. The rapidity with which tests of this sort become obsolete, thus far, has prevented the development of tests in this area. Now, the A&E Staff/TR has developed for use in the Professional Applicant Test Battery (PATB) a unique test designed to measure an applicant's knowledge and understanding of current events on the national and international scene. The items are drawn from significant happenings of the past year and a half. The content is balanced among the several areas of the world and among political, economic, military, and other fields. The questions, each of which is on a separate looseleaf page, are constantly reviewed and replaced by new items as they grow out of date or as new significant events occur in their area. Liberal use is made of maps, political cartoons, graphs, and quotations from speeches and editorials in an effort to get at an indication of the individual's understanding of broad problems and developments rather than memory for recent headlines.

It is believed that this test, among those developed in support of the activities of the Office of Personnel, will be a useful addition to the screening of applicants for a wide variety of specific assignments.

As items accumulate over the years, it will become possible to use them in individual cases to appraise a person's knowledge of what has happened in a given area over a specified period of time.

Further information regarding this test can be obtained by calling the Chief, Testing Services Branch, A&E Staff/TR, extension [REDACTED] 25X1A

NEXT INTELLIGENCE PRODUCTS EXHIBIT
SCHEDULED 14 FEBRUARY, THURSDAY

Members of the Agency are invited to attend the Intelligence Products Exhibit, scheduled to be shown in the Auditorium of the Recreation and Service Building on Thursday, 14 February, between 0930 and 1200 hours.

Designed primarily as an integral part of Intelligence Orientation, course B-3 in your office copy of the OTR Catalog, the exhibit has been found to be of great interest and significance to members of the Agency. The exhibit is unique, in that it presents in one room a comprehensive view of the greater part of the intelligence activities of CIA.

The exhibits are held every month during the year, August excepted. For the first half of 1957, they are scheduled for 14 March, 11 April, 9 May, and 6 June.

INTELLIGENCE COMMUNITY SENDS 16 TO ATTEND SPECIAL LECTURES ON INDIA

The SPECIAL LECTURE SERIES: SPHERE OF INDIAN INFLUENCE IN SOUTHEAST ASIA, recently terminated, was attended by 16 visiting students from other agencies of the Intelligence Community in addition to approximately 50 CIA students.

FIRST AMERICANS ABROAD COURSE
-GIVEN ON A REGIONAL BASIS-COMPLETED

The first Americans Abroad course to be conducted on a regional, rather than a country, basis was completed in mid-January. In addition to the Agency students enrolled, two dependents of Agency personnel attended this AMERICANS ABROAD - THE MIDDLE EAST.

The regional approach originally was chosen because of the practical difficulties involved in scheduling courses for each of the numerous countries of the area. This treatment proved successful.

Throughout the course stress was placed on those factors of life in the Middle East which provide a common experience for those assigned to stations such as [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. Religion, language, social customs, as well as people, places, and problems, were among the subjects discussed by students with those who knew the area as natives or had lived there for some time. Problems peculiar to the posts to which individual students were assigned also were discussed in specific manner.

CHINA AND RUSSIA

(a review by [REDACTED] Assistant/Eastern Studies/TR)

In a penetrating analysis of Sino-Russian relations, "China and Russia", in the June, 1956, issue of Atlantic Monthly, Edward Crankshaw quotes Sazonov, Russian Foreign Minister in 1912, as answering a German appeal for aid in strengthening China, with the comment: "Russia . . . cannot wish for the strengthening of her neighbor; she could therefore view with equanimity the collapse of modern China." What Sazonov was saying, and what Crankshaw makes as a significant point in his article, is that neither Tsarist Russia nor Soviet Russia has ever desired a strong independent national state on her long eastern border. The pertinence of this idea and of its implications is frequently overlooked today. National policy is the outgrowth of internal and external pressures—the moves of a society toward adaptation to its social and physical environment. Russia's Far Eastern policy long antedates the October Revolution. The fact that both Russia and China are today communist states, with a consequent political linkage, tends to blur the larger picture.

It is true that basic communist doctrine aims at communization of the world, and it is also true that in the early years of the Revolution in Russia communists the world over, aided and encouraged from Moscow, worked hard to accomplish this aim. But as Leninism changed to Stalinism, so Soviet foreign policy was reshaped to embrace the concept, Russian as well as Soviet, of Russian domination of Eurasia. World revolution was still a goal of the Kremlin, but where heretofore the phrase did not necessarily imply Soviet domination, Stalinist doctrine now admitted not even a pretense of national equality with Russia on the part of any communist state.

Thus, Soviet policy was aimed more at destroying Chiang Kai-shek than at aiding Mao Tse-tung. Paramountcy in Asia was the aim of Russia, both before and after the Revolution. As Crankshaw points out, Mao's rapid success took Stalin completely by surprise. The USSR had been planning and working for a weak and ineffectual South China hemmed in on the west by Sinkiang, on the north by Mongolia, North China and Manchuria, and on the east by North Korea, all under the actual domination of Russia. But, virtually unaided by Russia until the end appeared inevitable, the People's Republic of China was established in 1949 and in the years that followed, Chinese dominance was extended from Sinkiang to North Korea. Only in Outer Mongolia has Russia retained control.

China is in the way of becoming a power in Asia in its own right. And China has 600 million people (as opposed to the USSR's 220 million), growing at the rate of 20 million a year (as opposed to 3 million annually in Russia). China has an expanding economy, has already shown she can stand up to Western armies on an equal footing, and has strong national ambitions of her own. China is indeed communist, but neither a satellite nor a junior partner of Russia.

It is fully sovereign, fully independent. Its brand of communism, though closely akin to Russian communism in theory, has been tailored to suit Chinese aims and Chinese conditions. Pertinently, one may question whether any society, in the long run, reshapes itself to suit the requirements of an ideology or whether an ideology is remoulded in the course of time to meet local conditions.

What are China's aims? Is China more concerned with the propagation of communism in Asia--international communism, Moscow brand, that is--or is it rather concerned with rehabilitating itself as a viable society and a power in Asia? To put it another way, is China dedicated to the Soviet cause, in which the absolute dominance of Moscow is implicit, or is it determined to maintain its own independence and to pursue its own course? Crankshaw suggests that China's aims are Chinese and not Russian and that a position of subservience to Moscow is, and will continue to be, abhorrent to Peking. Crankshaw also suggests that Moscow is fully aware of this:

"... Messrs. Bulganin and Khrushchev (have) their eyes on another place besides Washington or London: no other place than Peking. Because in the eyes of the proud and jealous Chinese, the spiritual leaders of the new Asia, how can the demonstrative appearance of these pink-skinned Russians as patrons of the new India, of the new Burma, bordering on China herself, be regarded as anything but a challenge, a new manifestation of the southward-probing dynamic of the old, old Russia? How can the new China, tearing hell for leather into her own industrial revolution, needing urgently all the machines and steel that the Soviet Union can spare, regard with enthusiasm Moscow's lavish promises of these desiderata to countries which have not had a revolution To imagine that everything done in Moscow and Peking is concerned directly with Washington or London is not much more sensible than to believe that we have offended the gods when our house is struck by lightning."

Mr. Crankshaw's article is of particular interest in the light of Chou En-lai's current activities. China's protestations of unity with the USSR and devotion to Moscow leadership are certainly intended for external consumption and do not necessarily reflect the true state of affairs. One cannot but wonder whether this "little brother" act was not put on in response to a frantic appeal from Moscow for evidence of unity in the face of an obviously deteriorating situation. One also wonders what the quid pro quo is to be. It is not likely that Peking did not obtain one.

Eastern Studies, Language and Area School/Tr, in addition to numerous Chinese and Russian language courses, this Spring and Summer is offering three area courses covering East Asia and embracing much of the material discussed in Crankshaw's article.

IN THE MAJOR LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD

10 OCTOBER TO
1 MAY 1957

25X1A

All CIA personnel interested in improving their language proficiency and area knowledge are invited to attend a series of foreign language lectures (see Lecture Schedule below) presented Wednesdays at 1530 hours, in room 1-82, Quarters Eye. Information regarding the series may be obtained by calling [REDACTED] You will, of course, wish to arrange with your supervisor for authorization prior to attendance at any one of the lectures.

Recognizing the need for increased knowledge in the language and area fields, the Office of Training is offering this series of lectures to be given in the major languages of the world by CIA personnel. Topics of particular interest, both to analysts and personnel in operations, have been selected. The purpose is twofold: To advance your knowledge of foreign languages; to increase your insight into the understanding of foreign peoples - their patterns of thought and behavior.

A special feature of the program is the amount of attention devoted to the theme "Understanding and Dealing With Foreign Peoples." Individual lecturers will speak on how to understand and deal with the Russians, the Japanese, the Latin Americans, etc. In this way, much of the "know-how" gained by our personnel through years of experience will be transmitted to you. As a result, it is hoped that in your contacts with the different nationalities, both here and abroad, you will be able to establish more effective rapport and attain better results.

Summaries of the lectures, in English, will be provided in the "Understanding and Dealing With Foreign People" talks, and also in a few other instances. The lecture in Arabic, due to the very limited number of Agency personnel able to understand this language, will be given in English with a brief summary following in Arabic.
